Junior Martial Arts Athletes

Carl

I started doing judo when I was eight. According to my coach, I was very talented and he encouraged me to do well. When I was 12, I already had a black belt and I started entering national junior competitions. I practise every day now even though I have a lot of homework, so I work very hard. Unfortunately, I haven't got much time to hang out with friends, but I don't want to quit. I've won two national competitions so far and hope to win an Olympic medal one day.

Paul

I've studied taekwondo since I was six. Taekwondo is a Korean martial art. You jump and kick very high and fast, so you must wear a helmet to protect your head. I practise three times a week and I got my red belt last week. Taekwondo and judo are the only two martial arts in the Olympic Games and I love watching the competitions. I'm entering my first competition next month, so wish me luck!

Adam

Karate is my favourite martial art. I studied taekwondo when I was ten, but I'm quite short and I couldn't kick high enough. In karate, you use your hands more and you don't have to kick as high as in taekwondo. I think karate is lots of fun and it helps me to focus. I practise twice a week, but I'm not interested in entering competitions.

Questions 14-18

For each question, choose the correct answer.

Emma Langley

People often ask me why I became a make-up artist. I started painting people's faces when I was very young. Every Halloween, I used to paint my friends' faces. I made them look like vampires, witches and ghosts. The rest of the year, I practised painting animal faces on myself in front of the mirror. I became so good at face painting that a neighbour asked me to paint the children's faces at her daughter's birthday party. The children waited excitedly in line and I gave them clown faces or made them look like their favourite cartoon characters. They really loved it. That's when I decided that I wanted to become a make-up artist.

After I finished school, I started working at festivals in our city. I painted animal and clown faces on children, and pictures of birds, flowers or insects on people's arms and hands.

At one of the festivals, I met a band and they asked me to paint their faces before they went on stage to play. They thought my work was really unusual and they looked amazing. Everybody enjoyed the concert and their photo appeared in the newspapers. So the band decided to give me a job as their make-up artist and I started touring with them. We've been to music festivals and concert halls all over the country.

I'm lucky because I've got an incredible job. I meet a lot of famous musicians and I do the thing I love best.
